That's OK. Continue on.

We just need to do a reasonable search.

Um...I already submitted the request with the shorter criteria. Do we need the requester to agree to the search terms? I've not practiced that in the past.

Ed, how about you talk to the requester and suggest that we use the following as search terms and see if you can get him to agree:

Sent:6/24/16..7/6/17 AND ("AWPA standards" OR "American Wood Protection Association standards")

Tell the requester we get about 71 emails this way.

You can also tell him about the other search terms, and that they retrieve hundreds of emails, a lot of which are headline news articles.

See what he says.

Hi Frank,

71 messages showed up with the shorter search criteria in your 11:40 AM email below.

A few hundred emails showed up with the longer search criteria in your 11:34 AM email below.

Thanks!

Another thought: Why not take the requester at his word and search for:

Sent:6/24/16..7/6/17 AND ("AWPA standards" OR "American Wood Protection Association standards")

Folks,

The time frame is relatively short (6/24/16..today) and we're searching only one person's email, so that should cut down on the number of emails retrieved.

John, as a test, could you please copy and paste the following into your search bar in your email:

Sent:6/24/16..7/6/17 AND ("Treated wood" OR "Treated lumber" OR "Wood preservation" OR "American Wood Protection Association" OR "AWPA" OR "Wood preservation standards" OR "Sustainable wood products" OR "Cromated copper arsenate" OR "CCA")

Tell us how many documents the search returns.

I ran the search on my own email and got lots of headline news articles.

Let's see what happens with John's email box.

Thanks,

Hey Ed,
Usually I'm talking folks out of unnecessary keywords, especially if they are too general but in this case I feel like John is making every effort for the search to pick up any possible responsive email by including these additional terms. Do you think we risk generating a ton of unresponsive emails with his list of keywords? The request asks for anything mentioning or [though the requester wrote "of" but I think that's a typo] referencing AWPA standards, so my fear is that the acronym might not be in the email but if even if it's described differently, it might still be responsive.

While I don't want to drag this process out longer than it already is, I have to say Frank appears WAAAY more versed in how to conduct/ request a search, so I hope you don't mind my copying him here. Frank, thoughts on using all the keywords put forth by John? Should I include "AND" anywhere in my request?

Thanks,
Jeannine

Hi Jeannine and Rita,

John Butler sent me this list of search terms yesterday. If this is too many or too long, I would suggest going with "wood preservation" and "AWPA". The others just seem like variations of those 2. Let me know if you need more input from SME, John Butler.

Thanks,

Ed

Hi Ed,

Here is a short list of words to use when conducting a search on the subject below.

- Treated wood
- Treated lumber
- Wood preservation
- American Wood Protection Association (AWPA)
- Wood preservation standards
- Sustainable wood products
- Chromated copper arsenate (CCA)

Please let me know if you have any questions. Thanks!

Hi John,

I feel we made the best case we could. But deep down, as a person who lives FOIA's 5 days a week, I suspected that we would be doing things this way. I will likely need some search terms from you. I will also likely contact the requestor to explain that we will need more time to complete this request.

You are always welcome to contact me.

All,

I think Frank's approach is correct (except that the start date for the search should be 6/24/2016, not 2017). Also, if the search turns up nothing and Mr. Butler does not think he actually has any responsive email, I would engage the requester on that issue – i.e., we can and will run the OEI search, but it is unlikely that it will return anything either, etc.

Thanks.

Allison

Dear Ed and Rita,

To be absolutely sure that John Butler (LCD branch chief) has no email responsive to this request (i.e., mentions "AWPA" and is dated after June 24, 2017), I believe we have to ask OEI to search John's email.

I would, however, suggest that you help John search his entire mailbox using Outlook and tell the requester about the results, while we're waiting for OEI.

The search should look EXACTLY like this (upper case is very important for AND) and use the date you search instead of 7/3/17:

Click "Find more on server" if you can.

If the Outlook search finds nothing, call the requester and explain that we did a quick search and found no documents responsive to his request. Explain that to be absolutely sure of the results, we need to use a different search tool, and that the wait time for learning about the results of the search will be about [whatever the normal wait time is these days]. Ask for an appropriate extension of time.

Virginia, what is the usual wait time for OEI to run an Exchange Admin Console search and tell us about the results?

Allison, please correct me as you see fit.

Thanks,

Ed...I would LOVE to agree with you and really would prefer not to go through OEI but I'm passing this by Allison for a 3rd opinion.

Allison...I too think that we could get away with not doing an email search for this one. Thoughts?

Hi Rita,

This request asks for a very specific email on a very specific date. John says he has no emails concerning "AWAP." Can we close this out with him sending me an email saying he doesn't have it?

Because the request is so specific, I feel like it would be sort of overkill to go the Relativity route but I don't want get the rules wrong.

Thanks,

Ed
